campaign for a new workers' party conference 11am - 5pm sunday 29 june 2008

south camden community school, charrington street london NW1
(nearest rail/tube stations - kings cross/st pancras, euston, mornington crescent)

We've had a New Labour government for eleven years. Eleven years of war, tax increases, pay restraint, cuts and privatisation for most of us, and eleven years of nirvana for the super-rich. The wealth of Britain's 1000 richest people has more than quadrupled since New Labour came to power - it has gone up by 15% just since Brown took over as prime minister.

No wonder New Labour's poll ratings have been plummeting and Brown is so unpopular. For the first time since 1997 the nightmare scenario of a return to a Tory government is a real possibility. Millions of working class people who remember the Thatcher years are rightly horrified by the idea of a Cameron-led government.

The Campaign for a New Workers' Party doesn't want a return to a Tory government either. But nor do we want to spend our lives having to choose between two virtually identical parties for the super-rich - like trying to decide whether you would rather suffer from cancer or heart disease.

That is why we are campaigning for the trade unions in Britain to stop funding New Labour, and to begin building a party that actually stands up in working class people's interests. Since 1997 trade union leaders have handed over more than £100 million of their members' money to New Labour. New Labour have taken the money and kept on kicking trade unionists in the teeth. Enough is enough!

So far over three thousand people have signed up to support the Campaign for a New Workers' Party. However, we need to do more. The need for a mass party that stands for the millions not the millionaires is more urgent than ever. A political voice is desperately needed for the millions of public sector workers battling against the government's pay freeze, for local communities trying to stop their Post Offices or hospitals closing, for anti-war and environmental campaigners.

If you agree come to the Campaign for a New Workers' Party conference. The conference will discuss resolutions from local CNWP groups and affiliated organisations on the way forward from here.

Discussions will include:

- Break the link! Why the trade unions should disaffiliate from Labour.
- Jobs, homes and services not racism! How can we defeat the BNP?
- Building an electoral alternative - results from the May elections and the next step from here.
- What next for the CNWP?
